

Questions of Time

«Time People Series»

Please read before answering:

You have the right to not answer three questions.
Thank you for not only referring to your brand, its models, or your brand's news in order to make this interview more general.

So, Mr/Ms.When was the first time?

Are you always on time?

When was the time that you were very late for something, which caused you the most embarrassment?

Was there a time when you were late or early for something that allowed you to avoid the worst?

Was there a time when you were late or early for something that allowed you to live better? Do you remember a special blessed instant, a privileged moment?

What was your longest day?

Besides your own watch or timekeeper, what is the design that you consider the most timeless?

What is the precise longitude and latitude of your birthplace? If you don't have the time to look it up, please tell us the place and we will calculate it.

What is a personal object that you would like to remove from the grip of time so that it will never deteriorate? Avoid saying a watch as that would be too easy!

What is the type of "chronophage" (something that eats your precious time) that you fear the most? How do you manage this species of which everyone, regardless of level, knows at least one specimen?

If time could be written, what format would you prefer it to be in – a book, proverb, citation?

An African proverb says, "You have the hour, we have the time." What do you think about this saying?

Which book took you the longest to read (or that you never finished, for example)?

What is your first memory that was related to a duration of time (either positive or negative)?

What are the moments in your life that should never end?

If you have cried, what is the time that you thought you would never stop crying?

How do you differentiate time from eternity?

What was your first watch?

If you own several watches (thanks for stating the approximate number), what roles do they play in your life?

What is the watch you would like to have the most, besides the brand you work for?

What is your brand's watch that you are most proud of (avoid if possible, the latest model), and why? What is its relationship to time, in a few words?

If you were deprived of your watch and had to put a personal object in the ground that would tell you the time (like the ancient sundials), what would it be?
